Season development

So far the the harvest has remained as planned, product of sunny days during July and August. This has allowed to end the harvest of several varieties such as Nadorcott / W. Murcott, Salustiana and those of the Navel group.

Just as this year the first Tango exports were made, in these last weeks, the Orri variety was exported. It is a tangerine of Israeli origin developed by the Volcani Center Institute (Israel). Among the characteristics described for this late hybrid is its excellent organoleptic qualities and its practically null content in seeds. It has a very resistant skin that provides excellent conservation in both tree and postharvest.

The harvest of Valencia Late, Lemon and Urunique will continue. In week 39, the last shipment for the European Union will be loaded with a significant volumen of Valencia Late.

Normal winter temperatures and the few rainfall events during the month of July in the north and during August in the south, together with post-harvest strategies, have allowed us to arrive with quality fruit with a low incidence of rot.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

During the winter the average temperatures were similar throughout the territory in comparison to the historical averages of the country.

The agrometeorological frost events recorded during the winter were 13 in the south and 24 in the north were on July 6th and 7th were the most severe in the whole country.

Precipitation had an increasing gradient from south to north above the historical average around 12 and 30% respectively.

Premium Tangerina Project

In a Project with Linda Fruta (Brazil), we have developed and concreted the export of small mandarin sizes under the clamshells modality. A package has been thought to allow reaching the customer with 1 kg of net fruit. In this first experience, the variety used has been Orri.

It is our desire and challenge to continue working on the development of these types of strategies that satisfy our customers

Each clamshell has a label that provides the required information according to the regulations of the destination country.

Quality Management System— External Audit

On August 27th and 28th the Quality Management System of AGRISUR C.A.R.L packing house was audited by the Certifying Body (LSQA) in order to renew the BRC certification in its current version (versión 8).

It is our pleasure to inform you that the packing house kept the A qualification, which allows us to affirm the existing commitment within the members of the group to work towards continuous improvement. This new version is more demanding and its main objective is to work on the development of a innocuous labor culture.

CONGRATULATIONS to the AGRISUR team!!!
